Profile

Bradley is a litigation attorney who handles a wide range of business, commercial and municipal matters at the trial and appellate levels in both state and federal court.

He routinely represents businesses in the prosecution and defense of all types of commercial and employment disputes, including the enforcement of non-competition and other restrictive covenants in connection with the terms of employment and/or the sale of a business, employment discrimination, ERISA, breaches of fiduciary duty and faithless servant claims, construction-related litigation, creditors' rights claims, insurance coverage disputes, healthcare provider disputes, and intellectual property disputes, among others.

In addition, Bradley routinely prosecutes and defends trade secret misappropriation and related unfair competition and breach of fiduciary duty claims on behalf of businesses of all types, represents and defends accounting firms, attorneys and other professional organizations against professional liability and related claims, and has significant experience in representing clients in defense of, among other things, personal injury, civil rights and products liability claims. He also counsels a number of manufacturers, health care providers and other businesses on trade secret protection and is one of the principal architects of Bond's innovative Trade Secret Protection Audit.
