Profile

Craig's legal insight improves the quality of care and efficiency for large and small health care providers.

Having experience in both the public and the private sector, Craig provides health care providers with in-depth insight on compliance and transactional matters. Craig assists nursing homes, hospitals, OPWDD provider agencies, behavioral health and medical groups, and individual practitioners on a wide range of issues, including:

Prior to joining Bond, Schoeneck & King, Craig served as an attorney for both state and local governments. At the Department of Social Services of Steuben County, he resolved issues pertaining to Medicaid, public assistance, and family law. Later, at the New York State Department of Health, Craig was an attorney in the Bureau of Administrative Hearings and Appeals where he represented the Commissioner at hearings involving patient protection, nursing home operations, certificates of need, the New York State Medical Indemnity Fund, adult care facilities, and New York State's WIC Program.
