Profile

David assists clients on a large array of legal issues. David's practice includes drafting documents for business formations and governance, performing contract construction and review, providing general corporate council and assisting in merger and acquisition transactions.

David is a recent graduate of the University at Buffalo's School of Law. He served as the public relations director for the UB Moot Court Board and was the managing editor of the UB Human Rights Law Review during his time there. David is a member of the 2023 UB Order of the Coif and won the Robert J. Connelly Trial Technique award.

Prior to joining Bond, David was a legal intern at the Erie County District Attorney office. During his time there, he performed in-depth legal research on criminal law and constitutional issues. He also assisted assistant district attorneys in proceedings like arraignments, felony hearings and DWI trials. Reviewing documents for discovery and creating discovery packets for opposing council were also a part of his responsibilities.

David also served as a law clerk for New Era Cap Company, where he was responsible for researching intellectual property issues to ensure there were no infringement issues. During his time there he also reviewed and edited licensing agreements, loan agreements and other legal documents.
