Profile

Jackson concentrates his practice area on litigation and healthcare matters. He regularly represents clients on commercial, healthcare and tort actions, including regularly defending healthcare clients in medical malpractice actions. He also counsels and advises healthcare clients on regulatory compliance matters.

Before joining Bond, Jackson served as an AmeriCorps legal assistant with the non-profit Legal Assistance of Western New York, a judicial intern in the U.S. District Court Northern District of New York, and as a legal extern with the Central New York Chapter of the New York Civil Liberties Union.

A graduate of the Syracuse University College of Law, Jackson won the intracollegiate Lionel O. Grossman Moot Court Trial Competition and was awarded Best Advocate. He also served as a student practitioner with the Criminal Defense Clinic, providing free legal defense services and advocacy to low-income individuals, and as an executive editor of the Syracuse Law Review.
