Profile

Jennifer is a business law attorney who acts as a general legal advisor for businesses of all sizes, from sole proprietors to companies with hundreds of employees.

Her clients come from many different industries, including manufacturing, financial and other services, consulting, higher education, hospitality, agribusiness and alcohol manufacturing. She has a diverse practice and handles corporate and business law matters, real estate matters and liquor licensing matters.

Jennifer assists clients with a wide range of legal issues frequently encountered by businesses, such as contract negotiation (including vendor agreements, supply agreements, independent contractor agreements, employment agreements, distributions agreements and more) as well as real estate matters, such as leases and commercial real property purchases and sales.

As the co-chair of Bond's state-wide hospitality and tourism industry group, Jennifer works with clients in various segments of the hospitality industry, including hotels, restaurants, bars, clubs, nonprofit entities and alcohol manufacturers. For 20 years, she has helped clients obtain liquor licenses and permits, including clients seeking "retail" liquor licenses (including hotels, restaurants, sports stadiums, performing arts arenas, bars, vessels, clubs, and colleges and universities).

Jennifer also works with craft manufacturers including wineries, distilleries, cideries and breweries. She is experienced in working with clients to obtain the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau (TTB) and New York State Liquor Authority licenses that they need.

In addition, she is experienced in counseling her farm manufacturer clients on topic such as:

- The requirements with respect to using New York State grown ingredients;
- Services of alcohol in various areas of the farm, including the potential need for permits for special events like weddings or harvest festivals;
- Relationships with distributors; and
- Requirements for shipping alcohol products into other states.

Jennifer also frequently counsel clients regarding disciplinary proceedings before the New York State Liquor Authority, including charges such as "availing," service in unlicensed areas, service to minors and technical violations. She appears before the
