Profile

Kathleen is chair of the firm's tax assessment, condemnation and property valuation practice group and a member of the firm's environmental practice group. She has 20 years' experience in environmental, land use and eminent domain matters.

Kathleen has extensive experience counseling utilities, Industrial Development Agencies, public authorities, municipalities and school districts on issues relating to compliance with the New York State Environmental Quality Review Act and the acquisition of private property pursuant to the Eminent Domain Procedure Law.

Kathleen has extensive knowledge of the New York State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) and has guided numerous project sponsors, municipalities, regional agencies, IDAs and public authorities through the environmental review process. Throughout her career, she has addressed numerous SEQRA-related issues including challenges to lead agency status, segmentation, recission/amendment of negative declarations, the environmental impact statement process, generic environmental reviews, scoping, etc. Kathleen has particular experience in land use and SEQRA litigation and has been involved in a number of Article 78 proceedings. She has represented project sponsors, public authorities, school districts and municipalities in connection with the defense of Article 78 proceedings challenging land use and SEQRA-related decisions by these entities. In addition to SEQRA matters, Kathleen has worked on matters involving local land use approvals (zone changes, site plans, subdivisions, variances, PUDs) and state and federal regulatory compliance issues, particularly in the areas of wetlands, historic preservation, storm water management and mining.

Kathleen also has successfully acted as condemnor's counsel in planning, strategy and litigation concerning the acquisition of property interests by eminent domain in a variety of major projects including the development of a health care campus, regional transportation facilities, industrial parks, water supply easements, and natural gas and electric transmission lines. Her experience includes counseling clients with regard to access issues prior to condemnation and acquisition of federal conservation easements. She has significant experience reviewing appraisal reports, addressing complex valuation issues, and negotiating compensation awards prior to litigation. She also has specific experience advising clients that receive federal funds with respect to the requirements of the Uniform Relocation Act. Kathleen has represented condemnees in all aspects of eminent domain litigation, including challenges to the issuance of findings and determinations made
