Profile

Kevin is deputy chair of Bond's property practice and concentrates his practice in the areas of commercial real estate and commercial lending.

Kevin handles real estate purchase, sale and finance transactions for small businesses, national corporations, libraries, school districts, higher education institutions and other non-profit entities. He has represented commercial real estate developers in the development, sale, leasing and financing of commercial property. Kevin also handles leasing transactions on behalf of landlords and tenants, including national retail tenants. He also has experience with the formation and operation of condominiums, homeowners associations and cooperatives. Kevin serves as examining counsel for several title insurance companies.

Kevin's commercial lending experience includes working with commercial lenders on construction and commercial loans, including the issuance of letters of credit in public finance transactions. With a background in public finance, he often works with commercial banks in the purchase of tax exempt bonds.

Kevin is highly responsive to helping clients take advantage of economic development opportunities. As an example, following the announcement of the $100 billion Micron chip plant project in Clay, New York, he is already assisting national developer clients with the acquisition of properties in surrounding areas to the planned microchip facility.
