Profile

As a member of the mergers and acquisitions practice, Nick has significant experience representing clients in mergers, acquisitions and divestitures of all shapes and sizes. His clients include multinational defense contractors, private equity firms, manufacturers, and service providers in healthcare, banking, engineering and many other industries.

Nick works with individuals and companies in stock sales, asset sales, merger transactions, reorganizations and various other transactions. He also represents clients with respect to the competition law aspects of merger and acquisition transactions, including pre-transaction exchanges of information, competition law filings, agency investigations and approvals.

Examples of Nick's representative matters include negotiating and drafting transaction documents for the sale of a leading manufacturer of military antenna systems, representing a hospital system in a federal and state investigation into the competitive effects of a proposed hospital acquisition and advising a private equity company with respect to the proposed sale of equity in a developer of power transmission lines.
