Profile

For more than 50 years, Terry has been a presence on the labor and employment law stage in New York State.

During the course of his career, Terry has represented some of the largest municipalities in the State of New York and has regularly handled high-profile disciplinary proceedings, including an Education Law Section 3020-a case that imposed the highest fine in the history of the State ($100,000).

Trusted Advisor to Counties, Cities and Towns

Terry's practice includes collective bargaining, arbitration, employment discrimination and litigation. In addition to having represented more than 20 school districts, Terry has represented:

- Nassau County
- Westchester County
- City of Yonkers
- City of Mount Vernon
- City of Buffalo
- City of Watertown
- City of Long Beach
- City of Canandaigua
- Village of Garden City
- Village of Bronxville
- Village of Scarsdale
- Village of Port Chester
- Village of Hempstead
- Town of Yorktown

Improving Business Workforce

Terry's renown in the labor and employment world is not confined to the public sector or even to the New York metropolitan area. He has represented businesses and companies in negotiations and litigation throughout the United States and has experience in the printing, recording, service, restaurant and higher education industries.

Author of the Book on Public Sector Law

Terry was one of only eight editors of the first text on Public Sector Labor Law published by the New York State Bar Association. He also co-authored with E.J. McMahon from the Empire Center for New York State Policy - an in-depth analysis of 40 years of the Taylor Law entitled, "Taylor Made: The Cost and Consequences of New York's Public Sector Labor Law." He updated the study for the law's 50th anniversary in 2018. Terry and Mr. McMahon also published a Report on the impact of the Triborough Law entitled, "Triborough Trouble -- How an Obscure State Law Guarantees Pay Hikes for Government Employees -- and Raises the Tax Toll on
