Breakfast Briefing Series Overview

The legal and practical issues that employers face have become increasingly complex. Employers need to keep abreast of changes and trends in the workplace with respect to certain issues that are frequently problematic in order to avoid or at least minimize negative outcomes. Mindful of this need, we have developed an agenda covering a range of topics designed to assist employers with their risk management efforts.

What Human Resources and In-House Counsel Need To Know ...
Woodcliff Hotel & Spa

From Wall Street to Main Street, from Citibank to Ford and GM, economic conditions are forcing many New York employers to reduce their workforces or separate individuals from their payroll. Separation from employment also necessarily requires that eligibility for employee benefits be properly and timely addressed. While such separation activities can assist a company during difficult times, they also create high risks of potential liability at the most inopportune of times.

Faculty

STEPHEN C. DALEY Utica College of Syracuse University (B.S., magna cum laude, 1980); Syracuse University College of Law (J.D., magna cum laude, 1987).

Mr. Daley is Chair of the Firm's Employee Benefits Practice Group and practices in all areas of Employee Benefits Law, including qualified and non-qualified pension and welfare benefit plans; stock-based plans and arrangements (such as stock bonus plans, ESOPs, stock option plans, and phantom stock plans); tax-sheltered annuity plans for tax-exempt organizations; group-term life insurance plans; insured and self-funded medical plans; severance and early retirement incentive plans; executive employment and deferred compensation agreements; change of control ("golden parachute") arrangements; and ERISA litigation.

LOUIS P. DILORENZO Syracuse University (B.A., 1973); University at Buffalo Law School (J.D., 1976).

Mr. DiLorenzo has practiced Labor and Employment Law for 30 years and is Chair of Bond, Schoeneck & King, PLLC's Labor and Employment, Employee Benefits and Immigration Practice and Managing Partner of its New York City and Garden City Offices. He represents employers and management in all aspects of labor and employment law. His areas of expertise include collective bargaining, workplace investigations, NLRB proceedings, labor audits, supervisory training, wage and hour issues, arbitration, jury trials in both state and federal courts, wage incentive plans, OFCCP audits and proceedings, employment litigation before the EEOC and the Human Rights Division and alternative dispute resolution techniques.

THOMAS G. ERON Cornell University School of Industrial and Labor Relations (B.S., 1982); University of Chicago Law School (J.D., 1987).

Mr. Eron serves as the Chair of the Firm's Immigration Law Practice Group, and represents management in the employment and retention of foreign national employees. His Immigration practice focuses on employment-based applications and petitions (particularly non-immigrant work visas and permanent residency), and related labor condition and certification applications for employers with foreign national employees working in the United States. Mr. Eron counsels human resource managers on employment authorization and I-9 compliance issues and Social Security no-match investigations. He represents employers facing audits and enforcement actions by the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, and the Department of Justice.

JAMES HOLAHAN University of Rochester (B.A., 1977); College of William and Mary (J.D., 1983).

Mr. Holahan has represented and counseled employers ranging from Fortune 100 firms to small family businesses about employment matters and labor relations for over 20 years. A substantial portion of his practice involves defending employers in adversarial proceedings before the New York and federal courts and administrative agencies against discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wrongful discharge and other employment claims. Mr. Holahan also advises employers about compliance with the various federal, state and local laws regulating the employment relationship and regularly deals with a broad spectrum of personnel issues and problems ranging from safety in the workplace to union organizing and collective bargaining to negotiating and drafting personnel policies, employment contracts, non-compete agreements and other restrictive covenants.

PETER A. JONES School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University (B.S., 1989); University of Pennsylvania Law School (J.D., cum laude, 1992).

Mr. Jones counsels and represents employers of all types and sizes in a variety of labor and employment-related contexts, including employment litigation in Federal and State courts, collective bargaining negotiations, wage and hour compliance and proceedings before administrative agencies and the courts, labor arbitrations, union organizing campaigns, strikes and picketing, and representation and unfair labor practice proceedings before the National Labor Relations Board and public sector employers in negotiations, interest arbitration, and improper practice proceedings before the Public Employment Relations Board.

BRIAN LAUDADIO University of Rochester (B.A., 1993); Syracuse University Law School (J.D., 1996).

Mr. Laudadio is a litigator who represents clients at the trial and appellate levels of state and federal courts. He concentrates his practice in the areas of labor and employment matters, banking issues, commercial contract disputes and business tort litigation. Mr. Laudadio is also knowledgeable in Native American law, advising municipalities in Indian Land Claim and related Native American litigation.
